

SU48: Every second counts

Senate believes:

That running in elections can put a large amount of pressure on students and their ever growing workload

That large weighted assignments, such as placements and dissertations, have a great impact on students final degree classifications.

That students on placement should be given the same opportunities to take part in elections week.

That the Students' Union should be supporting students throughout and after elections week. Union.

Senate resolves:

That those students who run for Sabbatical elections should be given a week's extension on their largest assignment i.e. dissertation

That students who would be on placement should be given a weeks respite to make up at a later date.

Senate mandates:

The Vice President Education to work with the university to provide extensions for all students that take part in sabbatical elections.

Motion passed: January 2016

Policy lapse: January 2018
